PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last—No One Need Suffer!

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. William, (an Indian remedy,) called Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of twenty-five or thirty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful sooth-ing medicine. Lotions instruments and elec-turries do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. William's Pile Ointment: I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave me such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment.

Texas Pecan Crop.

Heretofore the pecan crop, as a source of revenue, has attracted but little attention. No care whatever has been taken with the trees; in fact, in many localities trees fifty to 100 years old have been cut down solely to obtain the nuts. Before the civil war the export from the port of Indianola alone was reported at $100,000; now it is estimated that the amount actually gathered exceeds $2,000,000 in value. With proper care of the trees and systematic gathering of the crop it is believed that $10,000,000 could be realized annually. Millions of bushels are lost every year by falling on the ground and rotting or devoured by hogs, squirrels, turkeys and other animals and birds. Except in inclosed pastures no claim is made by the owners of the land to the fruitage of the trees. Mexicans and negroes are the pecan gatherers, and in some districts white children.—Texas Land and Railway Journal.

King Henry VIII. Palace.

When any of your readers visit London, I want them to go to No. 17 Fleet street, where they can for sixpence pay their respects to King Henry VIII.; sit in one of Cardinal Wolsey's chairs; see their face in Anne Boleyn's looking-glass, and, if it is winter, warm their toes at the same fireplace where that virtuous old tyrant did his. This magnificent saloon, restored and redecorated, is now presented to the spectator in precisely the condition in which it existed in the sixteenth century.

The gorgeous and elaborate enrichments of the beautiful ceiling, with the old insignia of royalty, and the carved oak paneling on the walls, combine to form a series of embellishments as fresh and salient as during the period of its ancient grandeur. It is now a barber's shop, and John Carter is proprietor!—London letter.

A Suspended Aqueduct.

A cheap suspension aqueduct was invented and used by some miners in California in 1852. A river ran between two bluffs, one of which was considerably higher than the other. Water was available on the one, but it did not "pan out" as well as that upon the lower. Some sailors, including the mate of a whaler, took up a claim, and succeeded in making a hose of strong duck, about eight inches in diameter, and stretched it from the higher to the lower hill by means of a strong rope running through it. Water was then carried through this weak hose, which could not have resisted the pressure if lowered into the valley, and the ingenious sailors realized handsome fortunes out of the land that had been hitherto worthless.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

The speed of electricity is 192,000 miles per second.

The first locomotive built in this country, 1830, was named the "Phoenix."

The first glass manufactory in America was established by John Hewes, in New Hampshire, in 1790.

FORKS are mentioned in a charter of Ferdinand I. of Spain, 1101. They were introduced into England in the sixteenth century.

On the first of January, 1801, the initial day of the nineteenth century, Ireland passed into incorporating union with Great Britain.

A MILLION of dollars in our gold coin weigh 3,685.71 pounds avoirdupois, and 1,000,000 standard dollars in our silver coin weigh 58,928.57 pounds.

The largest and oldest chain bridge in the world is said to be that at King-tang, China, where it forms a perfect road from the top of one mountain to another.

The sun is eclipsed when the moon passes between the sun and the earth. The moon intercepts the sun's rays and casts a shadow on the earth. The moon is eclipsed when the earth is between the sun and the moon; the earth intercepts the sun's rays and casts a shadow on the moon.

A PARTY of miners passing through the Territory of Arizona had occasion to bury one of their number who died on the way. To mark the spot they cut an inscription on a stone which they found, and placed it on his grave. When the place was afterward settled it was referred to as the "Tombstone," that being the only landmark. Hence the origin of the name applied to a town in Arizona.

THE custom of "pairing" is not a new one in legislative bodies, and is frequently resorted to. When two legislators of opposite political views find it necessary to be absent from the sessions of the body of which they are members, they agree to absent themselves from the discussions of the house during a specified period. They may be "paired" on some particular question; that is, when both are absent the general result is substantially the same, for one would vote for the measure and the other against it. This is how we have the word, "paired."

THE postoffice existed in America from its earliest settlement. At the beginning it was merely a receptacle in the coffee house. There letters that arrived from abroad were deposited, and then taken by those to whom they were addressed, or delivered by neighbors. In the records of the General Court of Massachusetts for 1639 we find that notice "be given that Richard Fairbanks, his house in Boston, is the place appointed for all letters which are brought beyond the seas, or are to be sent thither, to be left with him; and he is to take care that they are to be delivered or sent according to the directions; and he is allowed for every letter a penny, and must answer all miscarriages through his own neglect in this kind."

Mistaken.

An American who started to ride from Colima to Mauzanillo, in Mexico, was stopped on the highway by a well-armed bandit.

"Pardon, señor," exclaimed the latter, "but I perceive that you have my coat on. Will you have the kindness to remove it?"

The American produced a six-shooter, and, cocking it, replied:

"Señor, I am of the opinion that you are mistaken about that coat."

"On closer observation I perceive that I am," the bandit answered, and disappeared in the wood.

THE bill to restrict Chinese immigration which has just passed the House and awaits the approval of the President to go into operation as a law, prohibits the coming of Chinese laborers, skilled or unskilled, to this country for the next twenty years. The measure is the most important one that has been enacted by Congress for many years, as it is directly in the interest of the great mass of working people in all parts of the land, who have found their means of livelihood slowly but surely leaving them in the competition with the pauper labor of the Chinese Empire. It checks in our midst the spread of idolatry, leprosy and prostitution, will help to preve the dignity and respectability of labor, which the workingmen of the land have the right to expect the government will foster and protect. The passage of the bill had become necessary. It is a measure of protection the country sorely needed and demanded as the only effective remedy for the evils now existing and the greater ones to come if the tide of Chinese immigration is permitted to flow unchecked to this country. The Democrats in Congress stood by the bill while the bulk of the opposition came from the Republican, side New England opposing it solidly.

THE BOSS LIAR.

Another Confession by George Ellis one of the Ashland Murderers, in Which He Goes Back on His First Statement.

Special to the Cincinnati Commercial.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 23.—George Ellis, one of the Ashland murderers, is the boss confessor of the day. In fact, he discounts anybody at that kind of amusement. He has made another confession. He says Neal and Craft are innocent, and makes an affidavit to it.

Your correspondent heard this news as it rapidly flew around town to-day, and he proceeded to run it down, and found out that there was some truth about it. The man who took Ellis' alleged affidavit was found, and refused to disclose any thing about it. A man who had seen the paper was then found, and he furnished these facts about it:

"For several days, or rather nights, Ellis has been seeing ghosts and other visions. He says he has seen on three occasions the forms of his victims, with the dreadful wounds from which the blood was flowing, enter his cell and stood by his bed, telling him to tell the truth or he would surely go to the devil, and that these apparitions have so worked on him as to make his mind once more clear and bring back his former reason. He says the spirits told him that if he would tell the truth about the matter they would haunt him no more. So he proceeds, with the aid of an affidavit, to tell that Neal and Craft are innocent of the murder; that he and two negroes whom he hired are the real murderers; that on the night of the murder they all went to the house of the victims, and after outraging them, killed them, the negroes holding them down while he murdered them. After they had committed their hellish work they were creeping away from the house, when they suddenly came upon Neal and Craft, who were going towards the residence of the victims. They hid in the bushes until these two had passed, when it occurred to him to fix the crime on them! That he then left the negroes and fell in with Neal and Craft, and persuaded them to go with him to a house where some damsels of easy virtue resided, and on their way he persuaded them to creep through the fence and pass around and away from the house where he just committed his crime in order that they might not be seen. That after arriving at the place they were in search of, he, after remaining awhile, left on some excuse, and going to Neal's house, succeeded in stealing a coat that Neal had worn that day, and going back to his victims smeared the coat with their blood, and then hid it where he thought it would soon be found.

"That fearful the negroes would become scared and tell on him, he persuaded one to leave the country, and the other one refused to leave and can still be found. [He gave their names, but we could not learn them.—Cor.]

"He says that he induced Neal and Craft to go with him to that place that he might be seen in their company, in case he should be arrested and tried, that he could easily turn State's evidence and get clear by fixing the guilt on them. He says he had a feeling from the moment he committed the crime that he would be caught up with, that he felt like some invisible power was holding him back; he tried to get away, tried to leave the country, but that he could not go—something he could not tell held him back. He felt that he would be arrested and convicted, and after turning State's evidence on Neal and Craft, he still knew that he would be hung, and that no power on earth could save him."

"He says he is living in torture more than all that is painted of Hades, and he wants to get out of it by telling the truth and suffering for his crime; that he has lied about these two men enough, and wants them to go clear."

And further my informant saith not.

From all that I can learn about it there must be some truth in it, and the affidavit is doubtless held back by the man who has it, to furnish to the proper authorities when Ellis has his trial.

But George Ellis is a hard man to believe. He has made so many "confessions" and said so much about this case that one don't know what to believe. But, in justice to innocent men, if they are innocent and in justice to the murderer Ellis, if he is a murderer, let us hope he has at last told the truth.

Ellis says Heflin is a fraud, and that he didn't know what he was doing when he did all his great(?)detective work in hunting down Neal and Craft.

The confession must be taken for what it is worth, but to those who know all the evidence elicited at the trial, it is very easy to see that Ellis' confession is a very straight one, and brings out a good many things proven at the trial.

Governor Blackburn, in respiting Neal and Craft, said he would let them live until their innocence was established or their guilt was firmly fixed in his mind.

SATURDAY EVE., MARCH 25, 1882.

In any work you're called to do,
Be sure you do it well,
And when you say you'll give an inch,
Prefer to give an ell.
Let no man say you shirked your work,
Gave any part a slight,
But make him say before the world
You did it square and right.
Then hold your head up like a man
And ask for what you do,
The utmost cent that justice says
Is fairly due to you.
The dignity of labor keep,
Just what it ought to be,
And very soon in your affairs
A happy change you'll see.

THE river is falling to-day.

THE sun looks better from having crossed the line.

MAYSVILLE has contributed about $50 to the Garfield Monument Fund.

CELLARS should be cleaned now, and the whitewash brush used liberally.

THE recent accident on the Kentucky Central cost the company about $12,000.

BUTTER at Flemingsburg sells for 25 cents a pound and in this city for 40 cents.

THERE was a heavy frost last night, but so far as we can learn, it left the fruit uninjured.

THE right to sell Wood's Artificial Jimson Bloom, in this county and Brown county, O., was sold yesterday by Messrs. Townsend & Peace to W. R. & C. F. Loyd. This invention which is secured by letters patent has proved to be an effective remedy for the ravages of the tobacco fly, and is extensively used in the tobacco districts of Southern Kentucky. It is furnished at a very low price, and is within the reach of every planter. A large number of the blooms have been sold already and there is a general disposition to give the invention a fair trial.

MAYSVILLE, KY., March 25, 1882.

Editor Bulletin: Being a pretty constant reader of your daily and weekly BULLETIN my attention has been attracted lately by an advertisement of Hunt & Doyle, in which is mentioned ladies' stitched underwear. You may not be aware that we ladies' are at all times conscious, and often a little particular in making our selection of such articles, as the discontents of badly cut or ill-fitting garments of this nature are irritating, to use a mild expression. Desirous of bettering my condition, I determined to ascertain for myself the truth of their assertions and consequently paid the establishment a visit and the result was highly gratifying.

It seemed to me the proprietors had ordered all customers at this department waited on by one or other of the young ladies in charge, which no doubt will prove beneficial, as during the visit I was attended throughout by a very pleasing person of my own sex, who showed (very willingly I thought) chemises, dressing-sacques, gowns, etc., of all styles, both plain and trimmed, but beautifully made at prices that I know from experience, are lower than the goods could be bought for, and the same proportionate value ruled all through the assortiment, which embraces some very elaborate designs, and which I can truthfully say is quite as large and extensive as in the more pretentious houses of the large eastern cities. In the course of conversation I asked her how it was possible to get them up so well at the prices—she replied that she had been waiting some time for that question, as it had been asked her more than fifty times, and then gave me the information which I lay before your readers. "The house which manufactures these goods is what is called a cloak house and competent cloak hands are not easily procured even in cities. In order to keep these, they work on underwear during the dull season of cloak making. The different articles are cut by the very best cutters to be had and size thirty-eight bust, accurately fitted on a living model by a lady superintendent who notes the least fault. It is then sent to the scaling-room, whence all sizes are returned in paper to the cutter, so that perfection is secured in the fit of each garment. Instead of one or two, twenty-thousand of each size is cut, which consumes case upon case of cotton, cambric etc., all these materials bought direct from the factories, are acquired at two-thirds the price at which a family could buy. But the great secret of all is that the machines are every one run by steam, and a good hand can make better wages, at five or ten cents each, than the utmost human labor could accomplish at one dollar each! More than this, the rooms are lighted by electricity, thus prolonging the working hours for those who wish to earn over time." "Well" said I "how are they kept so clean in making?" "They are made in a fifth or sixth story, where the dust never rises, the floors covered with thick felt, and always perfectly clean." I was wondering how they managed to put such beautiful stitching in them, and in short expressed as much, and must say, the answer seemed plausible. "No degree of perfection is attained but by practice, and besides the makers know if their work is not up to the standard, they will not be paid the price. If you make, make, make, on the same kind of garment day after day, and week after week, you acquire a perfection and skill that would appear impossible to the novice." As I wended my way homeward I could not but conclude that in the immense and carefully selected stock with its miles of billowy puffing, and countless yards of the rarest pattern of lace, deftly fashioned into garments so lovely, so artistic, down to the plain unadorned covering for the "human form divine," that all tastes could be suited, the simple, the aesthetic, as well as the consummate and too utterly utter.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

ORDINARY combustible substances may be set on fire by nitric acid.

OUR earth is moving through space with a velocity of nine miles a second.

THE temperature of the blood depends on the rapidity with which it is oxidized.

COAGULATION serves in nature the purpose of stopping wounds. Salt prevents it.

THE edible swallow's nest is made from a secretion from the glands of a kind of swift.

DEFECTIVE color vision is chiefly manifested in the inability to see the difference between blue and green.

GLUCOSE is used for manufacturing table syrups, candies, food for bees, artificial honey and in brewing.

WHEN warm air is forced through a hot mixture of turpentine and water a disinfecting substance is produced.

IN CASES of arsenic poisoning the phosphorus which exists as phosphoric acid in the brain is replaced by arsenic.

A SOLUTION of smelling salts in water, with a slight proportion of other saline matters, contains all the elementary bodies which enter into the composition of protoplasm.

THIN disks of very different substances emit sounds when exposed to the action of a rapidly interrupted beam of sunlight, proving sonorousness to be a property of matter.

GERMAN scientists are making a study of the relative distribution of blondes and brunettes, in aid of their investigations of the origin of the German people.

THE antennae of insects, besides being organs of touch, seem to be organs of smell. Flies, deprived of their antennae cease to display interest in tainted meat.

THE arguments of Malthus in regard to the relation between food supply and increase of population are said to apply to fish. They increase more rapidly than their food.

AMMONIA is to be found everywhere. By suspending a piece of glass, and after a while washing its outer surface by means of a spray bottle, the pressure of ammonia may be ascertained.

A good climber can ascend only 9,000 feet in nine hours; that is, raise his own weight 1,000 feet an hour. The work done by the heart is equivalent to raising its own weight 13,860 feet in the same time.

THE archæopteryx, the famous fossil, reptile-like bird, was about the size of a pigeon, and had a tail as long as its body, supported by numerous vertebrae, a pair of feathers corresponding to each vertebra.

THE following is useful in removing ink stains or bleaching wood: Oxalic acid dissolved in warm water, and applied to the parts stained, will remove stain, or bleach wood that is too dark to match any other part.

Two of the old-world reptiles have recently been discovered at Stuttgart. Simoaurus is the name given them, and they form an important link in the chain of evolution, being land animals in process of adaptation to the water.

The Pugilist's Sad Fate.

A New York Herald correspondent interviewed the once famous pugilist, Mike McCole, in New Orleans. The old champion thus stated his experience:

"This prize-fighting profession is a bad business anyhow. A man is bound to lose his fight some day if he keeps at it, and then his friends are sure to desert him at the last and worst part of his life, which is just the time he will need them most. I know all about that, and feel it more and more every day I live. When I was at the top of my glory and had never been whipped I had all sorts of good things put upon me, and that, too, oftentimes, when I didn't want them, and now I could hardly get a good dinner if I was to beg these men for it, and there is not one of them that would care to lend me a dime. Not one of them will ever believe it that a poor devil may be fairly and squarely whipped without any trick in the matter. It is like backing the favorite. Let the favorite fail, and nobody has the same confidence in the favorite again. I am now steamboating on the river, and shall stick to that as long as I live."
